GENERAL SESSIONS

Addressability Beyond the Cookie
From FLoC to contextual, deterministic to probabilistic, confused yet on which solution is which? Our resilient industry has worked hard to provide several alternatives to the third-party cookie. But it’s confusing as hell. As an agency, the brands you support are looking to you for answers. Make sure you have them! In this session, Eliza Nevers, Lotame’s SVP of Product, breaks down available offerings into easy-to-understand terms, and highlights potential pros and cons. She was joined by The Trade Desk’s SVP of Data Partnerships, Brenda Tuohig, for a deeper dive into alternative identity solutions, the future of addressability and the power of collaboration for the open web.

Panel: Data Enrichment Is Alive and Well

First-party data is all the rage. While certainly valuable, it only presents one flavor of a customer for a brand. That’s where data enrichment comes in. Third-party data is alive and well — and available as ever, thanks to identity solutions. Hear from key agency and ad tech executives and Director, Partnerships and Client Strategy at Lotame, Lana Warner, as they discuss the importance of identity coupled with data enrichment to drive the business outcomes brands want.
Case Study: How to Test Identity Solutions

Agencies and brands have no shortage of data connectivity options to deploy and test as preparation for the third-party cookieless future. And, it seems a new ID solution is introduced to the market every week. DIGO Hispanic Media joined Lotame to share how they set up a test for their brand client, Dr. Martens. Together, they outlined learnings and metrics from a recent campaign that leveraged Lotame’s Panorama ID solution. Watch this session to help define your testing strategy, and shape what success looks like for identity-powered audience addressability.

TEST MEASUREMENT

- Compare delivery, eCPM, and any other trackable KPIs
- Consider delivery on Safari as a proxy for third-party cookieless environments
